Hydratight Appoints Specialist to Promote Wind Power Product Range

International bolting and joint integrity services company Hydratight has appointed Juergen Schimohr as account manager responsible for promoting the company's wind product range.

Juergen will be working with OEMs, contractors and service companies in the wind-energy industry to demonstrate Hydratight's innovative products and engineering expertise.

Juergen has extensive experience in several engineering and sales disciplines, including 16 years in sales of earth-moving machines and other heavy plant and torque and tension equipment. Juergen worked in the wind-energy industry for a decade before joining Hydratight, and before that was leader of the training centre of a leading German torque and tension company.

"Juergen is an important addition to our team," said Gavin Coopey, Hydratight's global powergen market leader. "His experience in wind energy will be invaluable as we develop our product range and market share in that sector.

Though he will be concerned principally with business opportunities in the EMEA region, Juergen will also work with Hydratight operations in the USA and Asia Pacific to develop opportunities and share best-practice techniques with clients worldwide.
